

Senators To Study FBI Note

By ED CREAUGH
WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP) — Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) today won his fight to get his hotly controversial "FBI letter" into evidence in his censure hearing — but Senate investigators ruled it still secret and refused to make it public.

This decision, hailed by the McCarthy side as "eminently satisfactory," came as the six-member special committee called a Saturday session in an effort to finish the public hearings this week.

The committee bowed to a new ruling by Atty. Gen. Brownell that the 2½-page document produced by McCarthy during the McCarthy-Army hearings last spring is still secret and must not be made public.

But the senators granted McCarthy's plea—made in a heated exchange yesterday — that they study the letter themselves and weigh it in considering one of the charges against him.

This charge is that the Wisconsin senator illegally accepted secret FBI data and then presented it in the form of a "spurious" letter. McCarthy insists he had a right to receive the document and that it is exactly what it purports to be—a summary of an FBI report with security information removed.

Today's session was devoted chiefly to committee cross-examination of McCarthy on another of the five main groups of censure charges against him — that he abused Brig. Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker in questioning him at a closed hearing last Feb. 18.

McCarthy stuck firmly to his insistence that he did no such thing—that he sought only to "get the truth" from Zwicker when the general, according to McCarthy, "was not giving us straight forward—what I would consider honest answers."

Guy de Faria, assistant committee counsel, suggested Zwicker was only obeying presidential directives when he sidestepped questions about the Army's handling of alleged subversives.

McCarthy said no — that he would have honored a refusal to answer on that ground. He repeated an earlier charge that Zwicker, who sat listening in the hearing room, was "arrogant" and "evasive" without good reason.

Anyhow, McCarthy said, his remarks to Zwicker were not abusive — "I don't think you could call those criticisms," he said.

The senator agreed that he had told Zwicker he wasn't fit to wear "that uniform." But he said he was referring to the uniform of a general, not the U. S. Army uniform.

Referring to the senator's choice of words, De Faria inquired: "In all fairness, sir, aren't you sometimes addicted to hyperbole (exaggerated language)?"

Amid laughter from some spectators, McCarthy's lawyer, Edward Bennett Williams, suggested this was an improper question, and Chairman Watkins (R-Utah) ruled the query out of order.

Secretary of Defense Wilson, after a series of Capitol Hill and Pentagon conferences, wrote Watkins that the Defense Department "will encourage" Zwicker and Gen. Kirke B. Lawton to testify—but within limitations imposed by a presidential directive last May.

Wilson said it was the department's policy to "cooperate fully and completely" with all congressional committees and that "under this policy it was never intended by the department to limit the testimony of Generals Lawton and Zwicker except insofar as limitations are inherent" in the presidential order.

Sen. Case (R-SD) has suggested testimony from Zwicker about a conversation with Lawton, who McCarthy said was "broken" from his command at Ft. Monmouth, N.J., because he cooperated with McCarthy's investigations subcommittee.

Lawton told the committee Wednesday he had been advised by Defense Department counsel not to testify about his talk with Zwicker. Watkins contended the Army had "gagged" Lawton.

Asst. Defense Secretary Fred A. Seaton told reporters that Wilson's letter was intended to make perfectly clear that there never had been any order to prevent either of the generals from appearing as witnesses at the censure hearing. Lawton, said Seaton, "never was told he couldn't testify." Seaton said "I don't know" why Lawton or his attorney said that he was not permitted to testify.

Today's session heard a previously unannounced witness—Sen. Hayden (D-Ariz.), who in November 1952, appointed himself a member of the Senate subcommittee which later filed a report questioning some of McCarthy's activities.

47 Register As Deadline Draws Near

REGISTRATION of Monroe County voters was lackadaisical yesterday at the commissioners' office in the Courthouse.

It was the next to last day residents could register for the November elections — and only 47 persons showed up at the office.

Today is absolutely the final day on which registrations will be taken. The commissioners' office will be open until 9 tonight if you haven't registered by then, you're not on the voting list unless you have voted in an election recently.

Of the 47 persons who registered yesterday 30 were Republicans, 13 were Democrats and four registered "non-partisan."

Both Parties Claim Lead In New Voters

HARRISBURG, Sept. 10 (AP)—Both Republicans and Democrats today claimed the lead in new voter registrations on the eve of tomorrow's deadline.

Miles Horst, Republican state chairman, said the GOP will maintain its "dominant position" on the basis of a recent campaign to enroll new voters for the 1954 gubernatorial campaign.

Democrats went a step farther. State Chairman Joseph M. Barr said:

"I was amazed to learn that in traditionally strong Republican, rural counties registration has been almost two to one in favor of the Democratic party."

"Since it is our belief that this campaign will be won in Pennsylvania's farm belt, this trend toward the Democratic party is outstandingly significant."

Siamese Twins Undergo Surgery

REHOVOT, Israel, Sept. 10 (AP)—The 2-day old Israeli Siamese twins were operated on today and doctors said they learned one must die if they are separated.

The probe disclosed only one liver between the baby girls. No decision has yet been made on whether the children will be separated.

Family Almost Without Food But New Pup Well Supplied

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 10 (AP)—A Wisconsin family of eight envies its new mongrel pup. He, at least, has a year's supply of food.

Joe McGovern's six youngsters won the dog and the mountain of dog food on a Hollywood radio show yesterday afternoon. But the family hadn't had a square meal since hitting town two weeks ago.

McGovern, 43, told a reporter he owned an appliance shop and a seven-room house in Milwaukee a little more than a year ago. Then a windstorm unroofed his store and damaged $120,000 worth of uninsured merchandise.

Next he fell ill, the family savings were used up and the bank foreclosed on their home. McGovern loaded his wife Lillian, 38,

West Rejects Soviet Plan For Europe

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—The United States, Britain and France today rejected Russia's proposal to join in a new European security setup but said a Big Four meeting might be arranged if progress is made on the German and Austrian problems.

The State Department released the text of its note to Russia to this effect and said identical messages were delivered by the British and French at Moscow also.

Those were in reply to Russia's July 24 and Aug. 4 communications calling for a European security arrangement involving both Communist and free world countries. The Russian move, which also called for a new Big Four conference, was regarded here as another effort to wreck the Western North Atlantic Treaty Organization and block rearmament of West Germany.

The American reply in effect repeated the U.S. view that nothing would be gained at a Big Four foreign ministers meeting as long as the East and West disagree on the future of Austria and Germany.

Giving Austria a peace treaty and restoring her sovereignty is "the simplest step toward the promotion of European security," the American note said.

The American government remains ready, it added, to negotiate for early free elections in Germany as an "essential first step toward German reunification in freedom."

There is no use discussing these problems, already weighed at length during the Berlin conference last winter, unless "there is a better prospect of finding solutions than was revealed" at Berlin or in subsequent communications, the note said.

It expressed the hope that Russia would sign the Austrian treaty version advanced by Russia at the Berlin conference, but without attaching any strings. This was a renewal of the American offer at Berlin to accept the Soviet text. However, the Russians switched at Berlin to such contingencies as an all-European settlement and a German peace treaty before the Austrian pact could become effective.

On the question of disarmament, the American note repeated—with another invitation to Russia to go along—its proposal that all nuclear weapons be outlawed under a system of safeguards and inspections to enforce such a ban.

Westinghouse Strike Averted

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 10 (AP)—The CIO International Union of Electrical Workers and Westinghouse Electric Corp. tonight agreed upon a new two-year contract. The agreement came about three hours before a midnight strike deadline.

The corporation said the agreement gives 42,000 workers across the country wage and salary increases averaging "approximately five cents an hour" and higher pensions.

The agreement runs until Oct. 15, 1956. It can be renewed for 30 days' bargaining on wages anytime between Sept. 15 and Nov. 15, 1955.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 10 (AP)—The CIO United Steelworkers and Continental Can Co. today signed a new contract providing for wage increases for about 15,000 employees in 34 plants of the company in the U. S. and three in Canada.

Acid-Throwing Condemned Killers Slug Jailer, Flee From 'Escape-Proof' Jail

JACKSON, Miss., Sept. 10 (AP)—Two acid-throwing condemned killers slugged a jailer today and fled from the Hinds County jail which authorities had considered escape proof.

Law enforcement officials immediately threw all their resources, including a plane, into a statewide hunt for the two men.

The men were last seen in a red pickup truck. The escapees slugged three men after dashing to freedom to steal getaway vehicles. One remained in serious condition.

And jailer J. C. Landrum remained in critical condition from a blow on the head and was treated for acid burns of the face.

The two men sentenced to die in Mississippi's portable electric chair were: Minor Sorber, sentenced for his part in the slaying of a fellow convict at the state penitentiary; and Gerald Gallego, convicted of killing a Gulf Coast policeman.

Officers said Gallego refused to return to his cell last night after taking a shower and was left in the corridor in front of the jail cells on the fifth floor of the courthouse.

When Landrum brought breakfast to prisoners, he had to open the last door separating Gallego from freedom.

"This Gallego had some acid in his cell," an officer said. The acid is used for cleaning.

Lodge Accuses Russians Of Unprovoked Attacks On American Planes Since 1950

By FRANCIS W. CARPENTER
UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Sept. 10 (AP)—American Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. accused the Soviet Union today of a "pattern of unprovoked attacks" on American planes since 1950. He declared they must not go unchallenged.

In a speech to the U. N. Security Council, Lodge said the downing of an American bomber Sept. 4 with the loss of one American was the latest in this series. He called on the Soviet Union to go before the International Court of Justice for a settlement or accept some other means of peaceful adjustment.

Lodge cited six other incidents in which American planes were shot down by Soviet planes from the Baltic Sea almost to Alaska. All told, 28 lives were lost in those attacks, he said, and 16 persons were missing.

Lodge listed the incidents as follows:

"On April 8, 1950, an unarmed United States aircraft was shot down by Soviet aircraft in the Baltic Sea, in this attack 10 American lives were lost."

"On Nov. 6, 1951, an American weather aircraft was shot down by a Soviet aircraft in the Sea of Japan with a loss of 10 lives."

"On Nov. 19, 1951, a Soviet fighter forced an unarmed American plane down onto a Hungarian airfield. The four-man crew of this aircraft was held for ransom."

"On March 15, 1953, an American aircraft was attacked with warning while en route from Alaska to Japan with no loss of life; the attacking Soviet planes were beaten off."

"On July 29, 1953, an American B50, on a peaceful mission over the Sea of Japan, was shot down without warning; 16 members of that crew are still missing. The co-pilot was rescued and told the details of the ruthless attack by the Soviet aircraft."

Soviet Delegate Andrei V. Vishinsky, just back from home leave during which he dined with Prime Minister Malenkov, ridiculed the American charges that Red MIGs shot down a U. S. Navy Neptune bomber off the coast of Siberia last week. He said the American plane fired first and said the U. S. case did "not hold water." His answer showed the Russians have no intention of going to the international court.

Vishinsky declared flights of American planes near and over Soviet territory actually were intended to test Soviet radar defenses. If these flights ceased, he added, international relations would be improved and there would be no reason for incidents which cause world tension.

The Council voted 10-1 over Vishinsky's objections to consider Lodge's complaint that the U. S. bomber was shot down Sept. 4 on international high seas in an "unprovoked and hostile attack" by two MIG-type Soviet planes.

"It is the pattern of unprovoked attacks which is of greatest importance," Lodge told the Council. "These Soviet actions show a continuing disregard for the generally accepted standards of international conduct."

Little Threat To Area Seen By Weathermen

WEATHER Bureau officials were inclined to be hedgy about "Edna" last night, so far as Northeastern Pennsylvania is concerned.

Bureau forecasts indicated that the hurricane — would do little but dump rain on Pennsylvania's inland mountains.

Some wind — probably only about 15 miles per hour with gusts ranging upward to an unspecified, but apparently unalarming, peak — would accompany the rain, the forecasts said.

At Avoca airport, a weather reporter said the biggest part of "Edna" would be past N. E. Pennsylvania by mid-morning. There would be continued showers and winds changing to west-northwest, however, he said.

At Allentown airport no local or regional forecast was available, other than a general picture reporting the pattern of "Edna's" path up the Atlantic seaboard.

Both airports are being used as temporary havens for planes from Navy and Air Force bases along the coast.

Whatever course the hurricane might take today—and its paths has been erratic and unpredictable — Northeastern Pennsylvania seemed relatively remote from Edna's pattern of destruction.

The official forecast for the Pocono Mountains region follows:

Cloudy with rain ending Saturday morning becoming partly cloudy in afternoon with northerly winds 15 to 25 miles an hour in morning diminishing in afternoon, cool Saturday with high temperature 68 to 74. Fair and cool Sunday night. Sunday fair and a little warmer.

Boy Contracts Polio Despite Salk Vaccine

BRADFORD, Pa., Sept. 10 (AP)—Dr. H. J. McGhee, McKean county health director, reported today a second grader who was inoculated with the Salk vaccine is a victim of poliomyelitis.

The boy is 8-year-old Terry F. Tessena of Smethport, Pa. He is a patient in Bradford hospital. The youngster is reported in serious condition and has been in an oxygen tent for two days.

Officials say the boy is the first Salk vaccine-inoculated child in the state to be hit by the disease.

Tessena was one of 5,000 Pennsylvania second graders inoculated last spring. Bulbar polio is the most serious type.

The youngster is at least the third polio patient to have received the Salk vaccine. The others are in Fort Wayne, Ind., and Omaha.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Myron Tessena, is a nurse at an Olean, N. Y., hospital. She has two other children.

'Edna' Expected To Pass Far East Of New York City

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP) — Hurricane Edna veered slightly to the eastward late tonight and the Boston Weather Bureau said there was "a probability" it would not strike the mainland of New England.

The cheering advisory came as the entire New England coastal area—still recuperating from disastrous hurricane Carol—was braced for an even bigger blow.

The Boston forecaster said, however, he "does not rule out the possibility that the hurricane might swing inland."

Edna, a lumbering monster with 125 m.p.m. winds, was off Cape Hatteras, N. C., when the Boston Bureau said at 6:36 p.m. EDT that it was expected to sideswipe New York and land with its full fury on southern New England.

The bureau warned that Edna "is a more powerful storm than hurricane Carol and immediate precautions should be taken over Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island for abnormally high tides and hurricane winds."

The changed forecast said "should the hurricane swing inland there will undoubtedly be winds of at least 100 and possibly 125 m.p.h."

The earlier forecast had been made even more grim by reminders of the damage caused by the earlier blow.

"Evacuation from low lands near coast should be made before tomorrow morning,"

Agencies which were still picking up and mending in the wake of Carol, which 11 days ago took 68 lives and caused millions of dollars in property damage to New England, were alerted to an emergency basis for the new and even more powerful blow.

New York City also ordered its hospitals, subways and other departments on an emergency status as the nation's largest city was told to expect dangerous winds regardless of the hurricane's actual path.

At 7 p.m. the New York Weather Bureau predicted Edna would pass about 20 to 25 miles east of the eastern tip of Long Island—or about 150 miles east of Times Square.

Earlier Asst. Meteorologist James M. Osmon had said it "will be a miracle if hurricane Edna does not hit New York City head-on tomorrow." A subsequent notice showed the storm turning slightly to the east.

Tension gripped the coast from Cape Hatteras to Maine. For Edna—the season's fifth Atlantic hurricane and named after the fifth letter of the alphabet—applies here a woman's name. She maintained the prerogative of changing her mind.

The American Automobile Assn. advised motorists to keep off East Coast routes between Washington and Connecticut while the storm churned up the coast.

The 6:36 p.m. advisory showed Edna had picked up seven to 12 miles per hour in speed since the 2 p.m. warning. The later notice said winds near the center were 125 m.p.h. and hurricane force winds extended out from the center 150 miles to the east and 80 miles to the west.

Gale winds covered an area of 300 miles or more.

Connecticut Civil Defense Director William Hesketh warned residents of low-lying coastal areas that by midnight they could expect tides "much higher" than those shipped up by Carol.

The entire Connecticut civil defense organization was ordered on 24-hour duty. Public schools were opened as places of refuge.

Norwalk police reported a growing demand for sandbags as protective dikes were built by residents of shorefront homes.

Sandbags also were used by the Narragansett Electric Co. to protect its power plant along the waterfront in Providence, R. I.

Rhode Island was hardest hit by hurricane Carol, and business and industry throughout the tiny state worked feverishly tonight to guard against further disaster.

At Otis Air Force Base, on Cape Cod, Mass., married personnel with wives and children in the danger area were released from duty to be with their families.

The base's Food Service Squadron went on a 24-hour basis and was prepared to feed up to 1,000 to 1,500 additional persons if the need arose.

Throughout New England coastal areas, preparations were made to reopen emergency feeding and shelter facilities used after Carol's passing. National Guardsmen, called out after the earlier storm, were still on duty.

The New York City Transit Authority called out extra maintenance crews and ordered as many subway cars as possible to be kept underground, rather than left in yards.

The 3rd Coast Guard District canceled weekend liberty for all personnel. The district includes Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Connecticut and southern Vermont.

Along Long Island's south shore Coast Guardsmen were ordered to stand by with search and rescue equipment, ready for emergency action.

In New York Harbor, anchored vessels were moved up alongside protective wharves, and their moorings doubled.

The entire naval districts covering New England, New York and New Jersey were alerted to expect winds of up to 115 miles an hour in the next 24 hours.

Along the New Jersey and Long Island shores the sea was rough and storm-wave residents reported the skies "grey and eerie." Beaches were deserted. Fishing fleets and small boats were lashed with extra lines and sought every possible corner of safety.

Military and naval planes were flown inland as far as Buffalo, N. Y., and points in Pennsylvania and Ohio.

Some 80 ships moved out of the Norfolk Naval Base. The Battleship Iowa, the cruiser Juneau and the carriers Saipan and Mindoro departed Hampton Roads to ride out the storm at sea.

Coast Guard vessels stood by for any calls the length of the coast.

In Narragansett Bay, R. I., the Navy ordered two famous aircraft carriers — the Tarawa and Leyte — to anchor off shore.

Virtually the only note along the coast out of key with the grim preparations for hurricane Edna was in Atlantic City, N. J., where the Miss America Pageant officials went ahead with plans to carry on the third round of the contest.

Elsewhere residents boarded up windows, lashed down everything loose and put their boats and cars in the most secure places they could find. Many deserted lowlying areas and hit for higher ground or back to the cities.

Scripture—Acts 6:1-6; Romans 12:9-16; 13:1-10; 1 Corinthians 3:4-9; Galatians 5:13-15.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

IN the opening pages of the Bible we read God's statement: "It is not good for man to live alone." We are naturally social beings—children, youth, adults, older people. When a man or woman is solitary, happiness is almost always absent. We want very much to have friends—playmates in childhood, companions as we grow older. We need one another.

How can we make friends and keep them? We can learn a great deal in studying today's lesson.

In the book of Acts we are told that the early church was adding many converts, but in Jerusalem there arose a complaint that the needy widows among the Greek Christians were not being taken care of as were the Hebrews.

We have no way of knowing whether this was true or not, but the apostles were concerned about it. They consulted together and decided that they would choose seven of their number to whom they could entrust the matter to see that no injustice was done. After choosing the seven they laid hands for guidance, then laid their hands on the seven, consecrating them for this good work. Love is emphasized again and again as Paul's way of dealing with our companions and associates. How we of today need to practice and emphasize that in all our actions and thoughts. Read these words of Paul in Romans 12, memorize them and strive to act them.

I will not quote them all, for lack of space, but here is the gist of them: We should love with sincerity; cleave to that which is good and avoid evil.

"Be kindly affectioned one to another with brotherly love, preferring one another."

Look with affection on one another—playmates, friends, relatives and those with whom we come in contact daily. In our business we should not be lazy, but "fervent in spirit, serving the Lord." That means that whatever our work, we should do it with energy, remembering Jesus and His tireless work.

"Rejoicing in hope; patient in tribulation; continuing 'instant in prayer, distributing to the necessity of saints; given to hospitality.'"

In those far-off days when Christ's missionaries were going about carrying His message, there were very few hostilities at which they could stay even if they had the money—which they very seldom had. So they needed the hospitality of the homes of the brethren—as Jesus was entertained often in the home of Mary, Martha

TO THOSE WHO BUILD

This sturdy structure was built, not to prevent storms, but to withstand them. Every known device was used to make this building safe from the winds and rains that beat upon it.

So we should build for our children! Nothing parents can do will prevent a child from facing the realities and storms of life. All too soon he will face evil influences; all too soon he must make his own decisions.

But parents can help. As this ancient castle was constructed to withstand storms, so the spiritual life of the child should be fashioned to withstand the temptations and passions that will beset him. His character should be fortified with faith so as to meet the problems of life courageously, successfully and happily.

Every child should be taught to love God and his fellowman. He should learn to know the great personalities of the Bible who drew their strength from God. He should experience the strength that comes from prayer and be ever receptive to God's gift of grace.

It is the duty of adults to bring their children, and if need be their neighbor's children, to church school and worship services. For nothing is so important in a child's education as a true knowledge of the way of life as taught from the pages of the Bible.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

'Last Words' and You

Mention famous last words, and immediately there comes to mind that epic quotation: "I didn't know the gun was loaded." Many is the grave over which these familiar words have fallen. But the gun's a piker when it comes to killing—American style. We do it up brown with the automobile.

This cold fact triggered the press agent for one of the nation's insurance companies when he was wrestling around with a new way to get across the message of safety. He did it by using the famous last words of famous men, starting out with those of our first President, George Washington: "It is well. I die hard, but am not afraid to go."

And Stonewall Jackson's "Let us pass over the river, and rest under the shade of the trees."

Another one: Charles Lamb's "My bed-fellows are cramp and cough—we three all in one bed."

The press agent then pulls his switcheroo, proposing some sample "famous last words" for today's American:

"Traffic sort of heavy, but I just gotta make time . . . Shouldn't pass on this hill, but heck, I've got to get around that slowpoke . . . Blasted guy won't dim his lights. I'll show him. Here's some glare back at you . . . Sleepy, awfully sleepy, but I don't want to hole up in this burg tonight. Got to keep goin' to the next town . . ."

"Of course," as the insurance company's man then points out, "dying words won't make or break your earthly career. We just think this is one good way of showing the heartless way accidents have of jerking you out of this world without giving you a chance for a worthwhile last word—or for anything."

Presidential Privacy

From his lofty pinnacle as the senior "elder statesman" of the Republican Party, former President Herbert Hoover has come forth with some well chosen words about presidential privacy, and while they doubtless will be given scant attention by those to whom they were addressed, we think they merit more than casual observance.

Mr. Hoover, fishing with President Eisenhower in Colorado, took a dim view of the horde of newsmen surrounding the nation's chieftain as he cast hopefully into a Rocky Mountain stream in search of a wily trout.

Commenting sternly that in his time in the White House there were two occasions when the American people regarded presidential privacy, Mr. Hoover said they included prayer and fishing, but that the latter had been removed from the list.

Mr. Eisenhower stood by smilingly as Mr. Hoover rebuked the writers and photographers for not permitting the President to get on with his fishing without being surrounded by a great horde of witnesses. The President had nothing to say, but we would imagine he privately agreed with the Hoover comment.

After all, it is true that we allow our President mighty little privacy, whether he be on public or personal business. We are confident that the great majority of fishermen would applaud enthusiastically a suggestion that he be allowed to work a stream without a flock of people thrashing around to get good camera shots or to make a note of what success the President was having.

McCarthy Accused Of Being Something Of A Boor In Polite Senate Society

It would seem that thus far one of the principal charges against Senator Joe McCarthy before the Watkins Committee is that he is a harsh, gruff man whose selectivity of words is inadequate to conform with Senatorial etiquette. He is said to use base and degrading language about his colleagues. In a word, he is accused of being something of a boor in very polite society. He calls other Senators bad names; he has not yet been accused of sticking out his tongue, which he well might do.

The worst word he used is apparently senile. He has been accused of calling Senator Ralph Flanders senile. He is also being accused of referring to other Senators in language to which Flanders but not Senators are accustomed. He is accused of saying that one, Hendrickson, of New Jersey, had no guts. Guts is an ugly word. Joe should have used the word, colon, but nobody would have known what he meant, except those whose colon is a problem to them. He might have said that Hendrickson lacked a colon. He might also have used the word, derma, which some people stuff with a mixture of suet, flour and spices and then eat.

As to the senility of Senator Flanders, that is a measurable

The Once Over

September Scene
Hollywood won't make a picture these days unless the synopsis alone is too heavy to lift without a crane . . . (We hear one producer threw back "The Egyptian" as undersized. "Extras" are hired by cargo-lots and a single scene can have more animals in it than Ringling Brothers showed in its history . . . "The story is interesting but it lacks pyramids," a movie producer tells an author . . . And he is apt to ask "Can't we switch the big sweater-knitting scene to the Hanging Gardens of Babylon?" . . . You go to a movie house today and can't feel sure whether you are in the audience or in the picture . . . You reach for your box of popcorn and get your hand run over by an emperor's chariot . . . The mood of boy-and-girl romance and intimacy is difficult to capture . . . (How can a girl feel cozy, cheek-to-cheek with her escort, with gladiators, lions and the Pharaohs swarming all around her? . . . Demetrius may be in her lap and the boy friend may discover he has his arm around a dromedary . . . The trend for sheer business has reached such a point that we hear a producer of westerns just reject a script for a superdooper "they went thottaway" because there was no scene in which the cowboys pursued the Deadwood stagecoach on elephants.

September always brings us back to work excited, and confused. We know Dulles and Magawssay went trout fishing. Stassen agreed to split the series money between India and America. Arthur Watkins won't change pitchers despite Mendes-McCarthy and there will be no vote to Censure Casey Stengel. We also realize that EDC lost to Carol, that Dolly will pitch the opener and that the series will start in a couple of weeks, NATO or not.

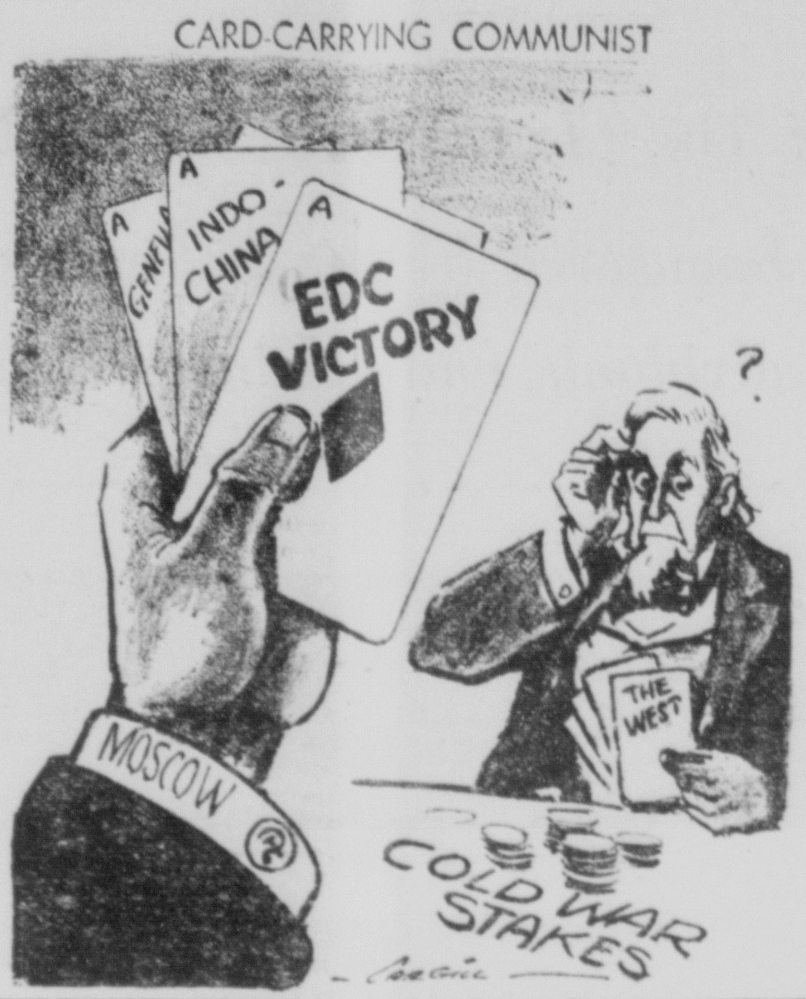

Otherwise the situation seems blurred, with nothing crystal clear except that it was a short summer, the police are stymied in their efforts to find out who kidnapped July, daylight saving will end shortly with Willie Mays dissenting and Clem Attlee was let out of the United Nations by waivers. We start the autumn in a crusading mood and call upon the top figures of the American turf to hold a Rescue Andy Crevelin Rally, name a Committee for the Suppression of Hypocrisy and come out for a racing man's right to tell the truth . . .

Mr. Crevelin, whose horse "Determiner" won the last Kentucky Derby, is in exile for saying what is a well-known fact, admitted through generations of horse racing, that owners do not always send young horses out to win in their first few races, but run them for conditioning purposes . . . He not only made this honest statement but made it on a tape recording, which should entitle him to such racing sheet comments as "Courageous type" and "Can surprise" . . . Mr. Crevelin was guilty of breaking fast from the Gate of Discretion, taking a long lead in the Candor Handicap and coming under the wire with his Truthfulness showing . . . If what he says is not true, what has been the meaning for 150 years of those racing comments "Last was fair," "Should do better next time out," "Stable reported shooting," "Has had conditioner" and "Prep was okay?"

Will the Dior move to abolish the bust prove a bust? . . . Can you remember away back when Uncle Sam, hearing that any aggressor had shot down Americans, acted as if an aggressor had shot down Americans? . . . Aw Boon Haw, who died the other day, was one of old China's richest men and made his pile imitating the patent medicine men of the early U. S. A. . . . His famed "Tiger ointment" stopped everything, he said, but Moscow. . . . Only question in the Senate Committee report on the Flanders' demand for a McCarthy censure is whether it will be served on white or rye . . . Walter Winchell looked so refreshed on his return to TV from a summer vacation we wished we knew where he spent it . . . "Mr. Welch said there was nothing to reports Secretary Stevens would resign." Wanna bet?

"I don't get much chance to talk to umpires," said Frankie Frisch to Jake Piller, as he turned from Jake to a big-league ump on his TV program. "You used to?" was Piller's quick rejoinder . . .

Looking At Life —by Erich Brandeis
"Pay Now-Fly Later" Best Idea In Any Of Our Plans

One of the things which we in this country will probably never learn is to WAIT, to take our time.

Of all the people in the world we are probably the most impatient ones. We must have everything TODAY—not tomorrow, not the day after tomorrow—it's got to be TODAY.

Go to any supermarket, to any department store. Watch the women on their shopping tours. (Mind you I have nothing against women. As I have said before, my mother was and my wife is a woman and I love them both.) But just note how those shoppers are finagling for position, how each of them is surreptitiously trying to get ahead of the other one. Five minutes extra? That would be terrible!

Men are a little bit better in their shopping habits. But just watch them in a ticket line at a baseball game or at the gate in a railroad station. Push, push, push. They may have reserved seats in a Pullman car, so it doesn't make the slightest difference whether they get their NOW or a couple of minutes later. But that wouldn't be according to Hoyle. Every fellow HAS to be the first one, just like every fellow has to win every game he plays.

I saw somewhere the other day that the new slogan of the airlines, "Fly now—pay later," might better be changed to "Pay now—fly later."

I think it's a good idea. Why wouldn't it be just as sensible to presume that a person can SAVE on the installment plan as to BUY on it?

I suppose the nothing down and $1.98 a week idea is wonderful up to a certain point. It enables all of us to live according to the American custom of never wanting to wait for anything, to have to have everything NOW, this very minute.

It seems to me that to pay your installment debts you will have to deny yourself some things anyway—why not go without those things NOW and enjoy whatever you want to do with your money when you HAVE it rather than when you only anticipate it?

I read about a firm in Chicago that has made a darn good living out of repossessing cars that have been bought on the installment plan and whose owners did not keep up the payments. In a few short years they repossessed 50,000 of these cars—all bought on the "fly now—pay later" idea.

Some years ago, when I was still very young, I bought one of the old Essex roadsters on the "fly now—pay later" plan. It was a beautiful car in those days and I couldn't wait to show it off to my best girl who lived about six miles or more out of San Francisco. I drove to her place in my best bib and tucker and invited her for a spin. When we got outside the car was gone. I called the police department but the sergeant notified me that the finance company had repossessed it. (It seems that whenever they do, they notify the police immediately.) I never saw the car or the girl again.

Far be it from me to give you any advice. But whenever you feel that you have to have something TODAY, why not pause and wonder whether you have reached your buying limit or whether perhaps the "pay now—fly later" idea may not be a pretty good one?

Try and Stop Me —by Bennet Cerf

Sacha Guitry, lon, time favorite of the Paris theatre, had a father, Lucien, who was equally famous in his day. Lucien, among other things, was noted for the perfection of his make-up for various of his starring roles. For example, he had a photo of Pasteur pasted on his mirror, and while visitors gaped, he would make up for the role, looking so exactly like the photo that no one could detect any difference whatever. Nor was there any. For what the wily Guitry had done was to make himself up first as Pasteur, then have himself photographed, and then substituted the result on his mirror in place of the original!

GOP May Not Have Enough Sportsmen To Keep Veep From Senate Make Big Business

—by H. G. Heller

Robert S. Allen is on vacation. In his absence, his guest column today deals with the colorful and dramatic comeback race being waged by "Veep" Alben Barkley against Senator John Sherman Cooper. This exciting and highly important campaign is brilliantly covered by a leading Kentucky newspaperman.

By NORMAN ISAACS
Managing Editor, The Louisville Times

Louisville, Ky.—It looks very much these days as if Washington may again see a familiar figure next January — former "Veep" Alben Barkley.

And the Eisenhower Administration is well aware of it. That was evinced by the announcement that the Republican party is sending its big guns into Kentucky in an effort to stave off a Barkley victory over Senator John Sherman Cooper.

Into the state are coming Vice-President Richard Nixon, Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks, Secretary of Interior Douglas McKay, Secretary of Navy Charles Thomas, Senators Everett Dirksen and Homer Capehart, and perhaps even the President himself — on a "nonpolitical" trip.

But impressive as is this list, it may not be enough. For Barkley is almost a magic name at Kentucky polls. And Senator Cooper has been hurt by Republican flounders. Finally, Kentucky's economic woes are the kind that harass any party in power.

At the moment, Barkley seems to have only one strike against him — his age.

But that may not carry much weight, because the "Veep" is a rugged 76. He seems to be in fine health, and gone are the thick-lensed glasses he wore for a time because of his cataract operation. His sight has improved and he wears pince-nez glasses. He takes note of when he speaks and his massive vigor belies his years.

Indeed, Barkley's appearance compares quite favorably with the younger, white-haired Cooper, who is 52, but who looks older.

Barkley obviously intends to exploit the economic situation. His choice of a Labor Day speaking engagement demonstrated that. He picked a United Mine Workers' rally at Pineville, which is in the heart of the most distressed area in the state.

The situation in the Eastern Kentucky coal fields has long been serious, but it has grown worse. Unemployment compensation claims are at very high figures. And there are other critical unemployment conditions in the state. In Louisville, for example, there are upwards of 22,000 presently out of work and there is considerable grumbling about the "Eisenhower boom."

The drought is playing a depressive role among the farmers. The Administration is not responsible for that, but the farmers are unhappy and that is bound to be reflected at the ballot box. Illustrative of the seriousness of the drought situation is the fact that in July alone, Kentucky farmers lost 13,000,000 bushels of corn — a $21,000,000 loss. The situation in the Eastern Kentucky coal fields has long been serious, but it has grown worse. Unemployment compensation claims are at very high figures. And there are other critical unemployment conditions in the state. In Louisville, for example, there are upwards of 22,000 presently out of work and there is considerable grumbling about the "Eisenhower boom."

Christenberry Plugs Poconos On Nation Television Show

ROB CHRISTENBERRY, Shawnee Summer resident who is New York State boxing commissioner gave the Pocono Mountains one of its biggest publicity boosts last night over nationwide network television.

Christenberry was the guest star on Edward R. Murrow's personality-interview show, "Person to Person," over CBS-TV. The "Person to Person" show is one of the network's most popular ventures and one of Murrow's most successful brainchildren.

The "Person to Person" cameras go to the home of the guest star, wander about idly through the rooms catching the atmosphere of the home and introducing the guest with studied informality.

On last night's show, seen here from 10:30 to 11 p.m., Murrow interviewed Christenberry in his New York City apartment. The boxing commissioner introduced his attractive teen-aged daughter, Sally, who is also well known in this area.

Sally told the millions of viewers and Murrow that she did not plan on returning to college, because she had been given a chance to try out for a new Broadway show.

After a brief chat with the Christenberys' father and daughter Murrow asked about Mrs. Christenberry.

Local viewers said Christenberry launched into the subject of the Poconos with a broad smile, informing Murrow that "we have a Summer home in the Pocono Mountains at Shawnee-on-the-Delaware."

This weekend, he said, is a "golf weekend at Fred Waring's Shawnee Inn" and Mrs. Christenberry was spending the weekend in the Poconos. A large portion of the program was spent on discussion of the Christenberys' home in this area and Mr. Christenberry's affection for the Pocono Mountains region.

Sorg said the tax plank was discussed at length but gave no indication at all what it recommends. Most observers believe the group probably declared for re-enactment of the state's one per cent sales levy which expires Aug. 31 next year, unless renewed by the 1955 Legislature.

There was a possibility, some observers thought, that the committee may not have mentioned the sales tax as such, but came out only for a "broad-based tax."

Other issues covered in the platform, Sorg said, include veterans, education, health and welfare, youth and women.

Constance Beers Represents Poconos In Jinx Contest Won By New York City Girl

CONSTANCE BEERS, East Stroudsburg, represented the Pocono Mountains in the "Junior Jinx" contest finals yesterday on TV.

Miss Beers was one of 14 finalists on the "Tex and Jinx" television show over WNET, Channel 4, at 2:30 p.m. yesterday. She is the daughter of Mrs. James Beers, 4 S. Kistler St., and the late James Beers.

The East Stroudsburg girl was named "Pocono Junior Jinx" in a full-fledged bathing-beauty, talent and sports competition last month at Shawnee Inn. The Inn and The Daily Record sponsored the contest locally.

Miss Beers made her first trip to New York on Tuesday of this week, when she was one of the honored guests—and a finalist—at a dinner at the Waldorf.

The judges looked the field of contestants over Tuesday night. Their decision was not announced until yesterday afternoon on TV.

Miss Beers said last night that "the other girls and I were very happy that Sue Oakland won." Miss Oakland, Connie said, is only 19 years old, but she was graduated from Barnard College at 18. The winner—like all the rest of the girls in the finals—is a New York City resident, Miss Beers said.

All of the girls were "also either models or on television already," Miss Beers said. She said she was the only one in the finals who had not yet made her professional bow either in modeling or on the air.

Miss Beers said the experience had been "wonderful" and she had enjoyed the contest very much.

Judges in the finals were Anita Colby, former professional model turned public relations expert who was once called "The Face" by her own publicists; Elliott Murphy, producer of the famed "Aquanow"; Eleanor Lamber, fashion expert; Victor Keppler, photographer; Frank Shields, tennis star; Charles McCabe, publisher of the N. Y. Mirror and Seymour Berkson, vice president of International News Service.

Girl Scout Leaders Map Busy Year

Girl Scout Leaders Association opened their new year with 30 present at the meeting held on Thursday night at the Girl Scout House with Mrs. George Wakefield presiding.

One of the major projects for the year will be a First Aid Course in which the leaders will be trained.

Mrs. Harry Heller, chairman of the Juliette Low Fund for restoration of the birthplace of the founder of Girl Scouting, announced that the campaign is opening now and will end in January. She asked the leaders to present the plans to their troops.

The leaders voted $5 as their contribution to the Community Chest Campaign.

Announcement was made of a Leaders Weekend Training Camp to be held at Camp Archbold on September 25 and 26. Reservations must be made by September 18. Other training projects included a training course for members of troop committees to be held in October.

Two of the leaders who had attended special Leadership Training sessions at Camp Edith Macy gave their reports.

Mrs. John Richards spent 12 days in camp in which the leaders learned by doing and benefited by their own mistakes, a course of action which Mrs. Richards recommended for local troops. Her training was largely in nature study, out-of-door activity and cooking.

Mrs. Layton Gearhart had a similar experience in her training session. However, Mrs. Gearhart, who is to serve as troop consultant, had a broader field to cover embracing arts and crafts and other fields in which leaders might have problems.

Following the meeting a training session in budgets was held.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

The hurricane winds scheduled to reach New York this morning will have no more force than the hurricane of meetings due to hit Monroe County next week. PTA's, Band Parents, church groups, music organizations, all of them jumping the gun with big meetings right and left.

Into the welter, there drops the news of still another club being organized, The Stroud Community Club. While its purpose will undoubtedly parallel those of other Federated Women's Clubs of the community, its program and personnel is quite different.

Looking over the list of charter members, it seems that most of them are mothers of small children or women who work. Anyway they've got a bunch of good workers there simply brimming with ideas, so I really look forward to great things from them.

Since they've chosen the second Thursday of each month, they'll have to fight it out with the Scrimptists' business meeting, the American Legion Auxiliary, and numerous Sunday School classes and circles.

Speaking of mothers of small children, reminds me that I just learned what Vere and Ann Banks named their twins: Nancy Ross and Richard Chandler. They've both started to gain and are due to leave the hospital in a few weeks.

Trade her my clubs for her twins.

Monroe County Garden Club Has Big Meeting At Manor

A catbird who has spent his summers at Pocono Manor and his winters in Honduras for five years, and a "down to earth" evaluation of garden soil, were among the items of information presented at the meeting of the Monroe County Garden Club at Pocono Manor Thursday afternoon.

Many of the members had luncheon at the Manor before the meeting. The hostesses: Mrs. Joseph F. Noonan, Mrs. Frank L. Stackhouse, Mrs. Francis Grover and Mrs. David F. Shiffer, greeted them on their arrival.

Mrs. Oscar J. Lilpenstein appointed the nominating committee at the brief business meeting: Mrs. Edward C. Knob, Mrs. Walter Stanard and Mrs. Judson Lee.

Dr. Edward Wildman, nature study lecturer at the Manor, was the first speaker, on the topic "Birds and Bird Banding." He emphasized the relationship between gardens and the birds which destroy so many of the harmful insects.

Bluebirds, he said, who left for the Southern trip the last week in August are particularly valuable as insect controls, especially since they are not disturbed by people and traffic. He told of the attempts by a man named Musselman in Quincy, Ill. who is trying to interest the public, especially Scouts and 4-H Clubs in starting blue bird colonies all over the country through providing birdhouses for them at the rate of five in a mile, not over 5 feet from the ground and in the open.

Through his extensive bird banding activities Dr. Wildman is able to forecast with exactitude the time of arrival of many of the native birds. The bluebirds, for instance will arrive on February 28; the robin on March 2; and 17 other varieties on May 4, 5, and 6.

One of the catbirds, banded five years ago, has been checked, he said, where he has spent the winters in Honduras and the summers at the Manor. Chipping sparrows have been checked and have spent the summer at the Manor for 18 consecutive years. Dr. Wildman has also checked the chimney swifts who arrive on April 15, after a winter in the Andes, a flight of 5,000 miles.

The work of bird banding is expanding each year and he said that members of the garden club could obtain further information by writing to "Bird Banding, Laurel, Md."

Second speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. Margaret Wheeler, in charge of landscaping and flower arrangements at the Manor, or who spoke on basic principles of horticulture. She urged members to have their soil tested so as to know whether to plant things which thrive in acid or alkaline soil. She urged mulches like sawdust, peat moss, waste from cider mills, maple and oak leaves to increase soil acidity, and lime to overcome super-acidity.

The ideal garden soil is a sandy loam, she said, and discussed plant feeding schedules. The perfect garden, she said, includes trees, shrubs, perennials, annuals, bulbs, and biennials, selected with height and color in mind.

In discussing plant diseases she said that for virus the only cure was burning the affected plants; for fungus, spray; for insects, commercial products. She urged more use of the services and information available through the county agent.

There was an excellent attendance, and the members enjoyed walks through the gardens after the meeting.

Reds Expected To Move On Quemoy Soon

By J. M. ROBERTS JR.
Associated Press News Analyst

Representatives of Nationalist China in the United States believe the Chinese Communists intend to invade Quemoy Island shortly.

They point out that the Red propaganda campaign against Formosa has reached a peak never before attained. It is not only being conducted by Peiping radio, which often directs itself more to foreign than local consumption. This time the campaign is being carried on in newspapers all over China.

This leads Chinese observers to the conclusion that Peiping will not be able to back down without action at this time, although its forces were repulsed at Quemoy in 1949. This time it seems the Reds, with the strength they built up in connection with the Korean War, will succeed unless United States air power is thrown into the breach. Planes are the chief aim of the 7th Fleet.

Whether that will be done either has not been decided or has been kept a secret. The decision may still await the National Security Council's meeting Sunday with the President and Secretary Dulles, who is returning from Manila, Formosa and Japan.

One suggestion has been that Quemoy and Formosa could be protected, at least to a certain extent, by turning over American planes to Nationalist pilots, as the Chinese turned planes over to the Russian Reds in the Korean War. The Nationalists now have a few old Thunderbolts, and a handful of Saabers, are on the way. They have nothing like the force which would be required. They think they have enough pilots, some trained in the United States, to handle a sufficient force. American experts, thinking of the Russian reservoir behind the Reds, are inclined to question this.

One reason for the Red Chinese agitation around Quemoy now may be to test the determination behind the posture taken by the United States fleet between Formosa and the Mainland. If American reaction is firm, many observers believe there will be no attack on Formosa even if Quemoy falls.

The Reds, of course, know the United States is under constant pressure from Britain not to take any chances of becoming embroiled in another fight with Red China. If they see any sign of faltering, they will be emboldened to move.

At any rate the Reds are expected to make a break, either a limited one toward Quemoy or an all-out one toward Formosa and Formosa, by Oct. 1, the Chinese national holiday which is akin to Independence Day in the United States.

Young Roosevelt Announces Fight To Finish For Democratic gubernatorial Nomination

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP)—Rep. Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. today promised a heated convention floor fight for the Democratic nomination for governor against attempts of Tammany and other party leaders to name Averell Harriman.

The late President's son sent out word he was in the fight to a finish. He emphasized it by saying he would not settle for second place—the nomination for lieutenant governor—at the Sept. 21-22 convention in New York.

Roosevelt's hopes of winning despite opposition of four of the state's most influential party leaders were boosted today when the CIO state convention in Albany endorsed his candidacy for the state's top post.

Roosevelt had backing also from some powerful upstate Democratic leaders, such as Daniel P. O'Connell, of Albany. But he still had a stiff, uphill fight in his quest for the governor's chair once occupied by his father on the latter's route to the White House.

He had been the apparent front runner until this week, after campaigning vigorously, mostly upstate.

Then came a rapid sequence of events.

Republican Gov. Thomas E. Dewey announced Tuesday he would not seek re-election.

The Republican leadership settled on Sen. Irving M. Ives as their choice for governor.

The Democratic leaders countered with a surprise, steamroller push for Harriman, former ambassador to Soviet Russia, former ambassador to Great Britain, and former secretary of commerce.

For a full day there was no word from young Roosevelt's campaign headquarters.

The question was whether he would bow to the seemingly hopeless odds and withdraw, or fight.

He rebounded today with word through his aides that the battle was on.

placed a guard around the home here of Taylor's former wife, Mrs. Marilyn Fletcher.

Mrs. Fletcher told the authorities that Taylor had threatened to kidnap their 5-year-old son, Michael, several times since their divorce.

Taylor is wanted by Philadelphia authorities in connection with the fatal stabbing of his wife, Sylvia, 27, yesterday morning.

Taylor thrust a honing knife into his wife's heart, tried to smother a sleeping sister-in-law, and then fled from his basement apartment in the Oak Lane section of North Philadelphia, police said.

Taylor surrendered to desk Lt. Earl C. Rapp in a South Buffalo precinct station.

"He seemed very meek and definitely mild-mannered," Rapp said.

Taylor told police he drove to Buffalo yesterday, spent the night with his father, Albert C. Taylor, then went to the police station.

When questioned about the death of his wife, police said, Taylor responded:

"I don't remember what I did. I don't know what happened." Police said that Taylor indicated he would waive extradition to Pennsylvania.

Police informed that Taylor may have headed for this city, had

Saylorsburg To Invade Kunkletown

KUNKLETOWN — Saylorsburg will invade Kunkletown tomorrow to open the championship playoff series in the Pocono Mountains League. The series is to be decided on a best-two-out-of-three-games basis.

The first pitch tomorrow is slated to be thrown at 2 p.m.

Kunkletown, second place club in the final standings of the circuit, fought its way into the championship playoff round by eliminating fourth place Lake Harmony in two straight games.

Saylorsburg scored the upset of the playoffs thus far by knocking pennant winning Pocono Lake out of the running in two straight contests.

Second game action in the championship playoff series will be held at Saylorsburg, while a field for the third game, if necessary, will be selected at a later date.

Asher Smith or Woodrow "Woody" Costenader will probably pitch for Kunkletown tomorrow, while either Bob Bonser or Ralph "Peanuts" Moyer took the rubber for the visiting Saylorsburg contingent.

Kunkletown is holding a cake walk tonight in the Kunkletown Church Grove. All proceeds from the affair will go toward support of the ball club.

Tickets For Title Fight Stolen

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP) — Al Weill, manager of heavyweight champion "Rocky" Marciano, reported to police today that between $20,000 and $30,000 worth of tickets for the Marciano-Ezzard Charles title fight had been stolen from his office during the night.

Detective William Murdy said Yankee Stadium and International Boxing Club officials had been notified of just what tickets were stolen. He said police would be posted at the stadium gates Wednesday to halt persons presenting the tickets.

Tatamy Meets Portland Today

PORTLAND — Portland and Tatamy will decide their three-game playoff series here today at 2:30 p.m. The winning club will be presented with the President's Cup, emblematic of the playoff championship.

The Apollos won the first game of the present series by a 2-0 count, but Tatamy came back last Sunday to even matters with a 5-2 decision. Portland won the toss for home field and each club decided that it would rather play today than tomorrow as originally scheduled.

Arbenz Flies To Exile In Mexico City

By JACK RUTLEDGE

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 10 (AP)—Ex-President Jacobo Arbenz Guzman of Guatemala flew into Mexican exile today with the shouts and curses of a vengeful crowd of his fellow countrymen his only send-off. His reception here was frosty.

Arbenz, the former chief of Guatemala's ousted pro-Communist regime, had spent 10 weeks as hide-away political refugee in the Mexican Embassy in Guatemala. He appeared pale and thin upon his arrival here with 17 of his supporters and his wife and two young sons.

Threatening crowds had gathered at the airport in Guatemala a few hours earlier when news spread of Arbenz' departure. They shouted "Assassins! Criminals! Genocides!" at the departing party. There were also cries of "Death to Arbenz!"

Arbenz and his party had to be spirited out the back door of the Mexican Embassy and taken by a circuitous route to the airport to avert hostile crowds. He had to strip during examination by Guatemalan customs officials. Women in the party wept as they boarded the Mexican commercial plane for the 3½-hour flight.

Among those in the party were Jose Manuel Fortuny, secretary of the Guatemalan Community party, and Col. Carlos Enrique Diaz, former armed forces head who took over the government for 34 hours after Arbenz resigned last June 27.

Arbenz, a 40-year-old former Guatemalan army colonel, had been among hundreds of political refugees in the Mexican Embassy in Guatemala since the forces of Lt. Col. Carlos Castillo Armas pushed him out of office.

In accord with the traditional Latin-American right of political asylum, Castillo, now Guatemala's president, decided to grant the refugees safe conduct permits out of the country. But the new regime pledged at the same time to seek the extradition of those wanted for numerous murders, tortures and other crimes it contends the former government committed.

Arbenz has been accused of complicity in the 1949 ambush slaying of Col. Francisco Javier Arana, then Guatemalan armed forces chief and his strongest political rival. A formal charge against Arbenz was placed before a tribunal of the Castillo regime in early July.

Retracing Jesus' Steps In Jerusalem A Rewarding Experience For Caravan

(James H. Ottaway Jr. is a son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Ottaway, of Kodolcott, N. Y. and Buck Hill Falls, Pa., publishers of The Daily Record. He is one of 15 young people in the Christian Youth Caravan who will visit England, France, Greece, Israel, Jordan, Egypt, Italy and the Netherlands. Purpose of the Christian Youth Caravan is to create better understanding between the United States and the people of the countries visited, especially the youth.)

By JAMES H. OTTAWAY JR.

WISE YOUTH HOSTEL, Jerusalem, Israel—Through the American Friends of the Middle East, we met Mrs. Katy Antonius, a wonderful lady, who took our Caravan to all the religious sites.

We will never forget the wonderful experiences we had in Jerusalem with her.

Most of the religious sites lie within the Old City Walls of King Herod. We started out at St. Stephen's Gate in the north wall. Just inside the walls we visited the James H. Ottaway Jr.

Chapel of St. Anne where Jesus healed the cripple (John 5).

Then we saw the Praetorium and Tower Antonia where Pontius Pilate lived. Underneath the "Ecce Homo" Chapel we stood on the Lithostratos or "paved way" where Pilate condemned Jesus.

Seeing these historically accurate places strengthens our faith. Seeing is believing.

From the Tower Antonia we looked down upon the Ancient Temple Area where Jesus "went about His Father's business" at the age of 12. The present "Dome of The Rocks" was built by Moslems.

We passed the Chapel of the Flagellation where Jesus was beaten and crowned with thorns. Then we walked up the "Via Dolorosa" or "Way of Sorrow" toward Golgotha, the "Hill of the Skull" where He was crucified.

Retracing Jesus' steps up the narrow "Via Dolorosa" past the spots where He fell under the weight of His cross, met His Mother Mary, and was helped by Simon of Cyrene, filled our hearts with sympathy and great reverence for Our Lord.

We entered the Church of the Holy Sepulchre and climbed the 14 steps to Calvary. All the area where Jesus was nailed to the cross, died, and was taken down to His tomb is all in the Basilica of that church.

I was disturbed by all the ornaments and embellishments which have been added to the Holy spots over the centuries. The Greek Orthodox, Armenian, Coptic and Franciscan churches are all fighting to maintain some part of the Holy spots.

We came down from Calvary to the ground floor where the Stone of the Anointment lies. We entered a small chapel representing Christ's tomb. Although that did not seem accurate, we still sensed the spiritual atmosphere of the place.

The mental struggle between the past and the present made it difficult to realize the full importance of each religious scene. We crammed a lot into one morning, but it was certainly a rewarding experience—well worth our 7000-mile pilgrimage.

We stood on the spot where Jesus was crucified and arose triumphantly from the dead. Words cannot describe the feelings we had.

I must write another letter to tell you about the Mount of Olives and Mrs. Antonius' fabulous party!!

Miss Allen Attempts To Resume Job

COLUMBIA, N.J., Sept. 10 (AP)—Miss Mattie Allen attempted to report for work as principal of Columbia school today but was prevented from entering the building by Knowlton Township's three-man school board.

The 58-year-old teacher had been asked to resign her post after she was charged with mistreating a 12-year-old pupil last May. She refused to quit and the board hired Charles Treible of Blairstown to replace her.

Miss Allen reported for work every morning since school reopened Wednesday.

Last night Verne Clifford, vice-president of the board, announced that Miss Allen had been "retired without reservation and practically a full pension."

Clifford said he had been notified of the pension action after a meeting of trustees of the state teachers' pension and annuity fund in Trenton.

Clifford, school board president A. Y. Anderson and Ormon Roof, the third member, blocked Miss Allen from entering school this morning.

When she walked up the front steps of the school, she called through an open window to another teacher, Mrs. Mabel Hill:

"Babel, I'm reporting for work." She then opened the front door.

where two of the school board members were holding the fort, and repeated to them:

"I'm reporting for duty."

"No admittance," was their reply and she left. Miss Allen told a reporter who followed her that she had not made up her mind about continuing the fight for her job.

Miss Allen was acquitted last year by the board of education of mistreating pupils. She is now awaiting action by the Warren County grand jury on a charge of atrocious assault and battery made by a parent. She has denied the charge.

Miss Allen's retirement was proposed by the school board. She underwent the necessary physical examination prior to yesterday's session with the pension fund trustees after she was advised that any failure to do so would forfeit her pension rights.
